Exhibition Juror

An exhibiting artist for more than 40 years Bruce Lieberman came up as neo-expressionist in the 80's, exhibiting in New York as part of the New York Figurative and Narrative scene of the late 70's and 80's.

Bruce studied at Southampton College, Stony Brook University, and Brandeis University. He received an M.A. from C.W. Post, LIU, and his M.F.A. from Brooklyn College. Originally from Brooklyn, he was nominated for the Academy of Arts and Letters and the National Academy, and was a winner of the Charles C Shaw Award for painting. After moving permanently to the east end of Long Island in 1990, he became associated with the Long Island landscape tradition/movement after being included as the youngest painter in the book 20th century Long Island Landscape Painting, by Ronald G. Pisano, New York Graphic Society, Little, Brown, published in 1990.

Much of his recent work is inspired by his Hamptons surroundings and life. Lieberman's work, as well as being included in many public and private collections, has been exhibited in NYC Galleries, and various galleries and museums on Long Island, including the permanent collections of the Heckscher Museum and the Long Island Museum of American Art. Critical review and commentary have appeared in books, newspapers, journals, and magazines, including The New York Times, Newsday, Huffington Post, and El Diario. Bruce also teaches Studio Art at Stony Brook University. Learn more about Bruce Lieberman at www.brucelieberman.com.
